Emeritus Director — Miss Sally Lee Powell, Shepherdstown.

ADDRESSES

(Delivered before the Society since December 1, 1959)

May 14 at Charles Town — "Gray Ghosts" by Virgil Carrington Jones.

Membership — Open to all who have an interest in the history of Jefferson County. Annual dues of $1.00 should be paid to the Treasurer, Miss Rachel Snyder, Shepherdstown, W. Va., before the meeting in May.

Price of the Magazine — $1.25 a copy. Copies of the 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, 1956 and 1957 issues are no longer available, except possibly in some store dealing in rare books.

Orders for the Magazine should be given to the Treasurer, Miss Rachel Snyder, Shepherdstown, West Virginia.

"No man is fit to be entrusted with the control of the present who is ignorant of the past, and no people who are indifferent to their past need hope to make their future great."

JEFFERSON COUNTY OXONIANS

Jefferson County has produced many distinguished individuals whose accomplishments in their respective fields have been given suitable recognition in print. It is not widely known that Jefferson County has also produced a number of men whose scholastic ability qualified them for selection as Rhodes Scholars, and still others who were chosen as Sparrow Fellows to pursue advanced study at Oxford University.

This short paper is an attempt to list these men who were chosen to study at Oxford, and to trace briefly their subsequent careers.

THE RHODES SCHOLARS

Cecil John Rhodes, the founder of the scholarship system which bears his name, and one of the great nineteenth century British builders of Empire, died in 1902. His will provided for numerous beneficences, the most famous of which became the Rhodes Scholarship. The Will states:

"Whereas I consider the education of young Colonists at one of the Universities in the United Kingdom is of great advantage to them for giving breadth to their views, for their instruction in life and manners, and for instilling into their minds the advantage to the Colonies as well as to the United Kingdom of the retention of the unity of the Empire . . . And whereas I also desire to encourage and foster an appreciation of the advantages which I implicitly believe will result from the union of the English-speaking peoples throughout the world and to encourage in the students from the United States of North America who will benefit from the American Scholarships to be established for the reason above given at the University of Oxford under this my Will and attachment to the country from which they have sprung but without I hope withdrawing them or their sympathies from the land of their adoption or birth . . . I appropriate two of the American Scholarships to each of the present States and Territories of the United States of North America provided that if any of the said Territories shall in my lifetime be admitted as a State the Scholarships appropriated to such Territory shall be appropriated to such State."

The Will also provided a priority scale in case of insufficient income for payment of all the Scholarships. In this the Scholarships for Rhodesia are placed first, those for Cape Colony second, the other Colonial Scholarships third, and those for America last. A codicil to the Will provides five Scholarships annually to Germany. This addition was made after Mr. Rhodes had visited Germany and the Will states his reason for it:

"The object is that an understanding between the three great Powers will render war impossible and educational relations will make the strongest tie."

Unhappily this objective was not realized.

Mr. Rhodes' directions and suggestions for the selection of scholars were in part as follows:

"My desire being that the students who shall be elected to the Scholarships shall not be merely bookworms I direct that in the election of a student to a Scholarship regard shall be had to (i) his literary and scholastic attainments (ii) his fondness of and success in manly outdoor sports such as cricket football and the like (iii) his qualities of manhood truth courage devotion to duty sympathy for the protection of the weak kindliness unselfishness and fellowship and (iv) his exhibition during school days of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates for these latter attributes will be likely in after life to guide him to esteem the performance of public duties as his highest aim.

"No student shall be qualified or disqualified for election to a Scholarship on account of his race or religious opinions."

It is apparent that Mr. Rhodes wished his Scholars to combine the qualities which he felt would make for practical success and moral influence in life.

It was under these remarkable provisions that the system of Rhodes Scholarships began, a system which was to draw young men from all parts of the world to Oxford, and to make the name of Rhodes synonymous with high scholarship throughout the globe.

Tucker Brooke

Though Charles Frederick Tucker Brooke was born in Morgantown, West Virginia, on June 4, 1883, he was regarded as one of the distinguished sons of Jefferson County. His final resting place is in Charles Town's Zion Cemetery; five generations of his ancestors lived in Jefferson County; and his father, Henry St. George Tucker Brooke, both before and after his long years of service as Dean of the West Virginia University Law School, made his home in Charles Town.

In 1904 Tucker Brooke won the honor of being the first Rhodes Scholar from West Virginia. He had already earned A.B. and A.M. degrees at West Virginia University and had been a fellow in German at the University of Chicago. In 1906 Oxford University awarded him the A.B. degree with honors, and in 1907 the degree of B.Litt.

In 1935 Lawrence College conferred upon him the degree of D.Litt.

After a brief teaching experience at Cornell, he became a member of the English Department at Yale. He later was made a professor and remained at Yale until his death on June 22, 1946. Dr. Brooke was considered an authority on Elizabethan literature and particularly as a Shakespearean scholar. He contributed essays, sketches and short stories to magazines and was editor of "The Yale Shakespeare."

A number of years went by before Jefferson County again contributed a Rhodes Scholar, but we find two young Charles Town men were selected for this honor during the early 1920's. They were Samuel Walter Washington and Henry Harrison Cooke.

Samuel Walter Washington

Samuel Walter Washington was born in Charles Town, September 30, 1901, the son of S. W. and Elizabeth Willis Washington. He was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1921, and was that year selected as a Rhodes Scholar, studying at Hartford College, Oxford, through 1924. After two years as an instructor at Carnegie Institute of Technology, he entered the Foreign Service School in Washington, and in 1927 became a member of the Foreign Service, United States Department of State. His foreign assignments were Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Tokyo, Bogota, Istanbul, Riga, Stockholm, San Jose, Mexico City and Madrid. From 1950 to 1954 he served in the Central Intelligence Agency in Washington, and from 1954 through 1959 was a Lecturer at the Woodrow Wilson School of Foreign Affairs at the University of Virginia.

Mr. Washington is currently a Visiting Professor at the University of Puerto Rico in the field of foreign affairs.

Henry Harrison Cooke

Charles Town was also the birthplace of Henry Harrison Cooke. The son of H. H. and Agnes Kearsley Cooke, he was born July 21, 1900. He attended Charles Town High School and the Shenandoah Valley Academy, graduating from the latter in 1918. After graduating from the Virginia Military Institute in 1921, he was selected as a Rhodes Scholar and went to England. He attended Christ Church College, graduating in 1924.

Having studied chemistry at Oxford, he began work as a chemist with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1925. He was a technologist for that company when retired in 1957.

He married Anne Edward Perkins, of Chestertown, Md., in 1930. Mr. and Mrs. Cooke continue to make their home in Elizabeth, N. J., where, in "retirement," he is teaching chemistry in The Pingry School, an independent day school for boys.

The two sons of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Lee of Shepherdstown were the most recent Rhodes Scholars. Dr. and Mrs. Lee were for many years engaged in missionary work for the Episcopal Church at Anking, China, and both of their sons were born there. Home leaves for the Lee family were spent at Dr. Lee's native Shepherdstown, and it was there that the children learned to know their many Jefferson County relatives and to feel at home in the United States.

Duncan Chaplin Lee

Duncan Chaplin Lee was born December 19, 1913. He was graduated from Yale in 1935, and went that autumn to England as a Rhodes Scholar. In 1938 he received a law degree at Christ Church College, Oxford. He served with the U. S. Office of Strategic Services in the China-Burma-India Theatre in World War II, was personal and legal advisor to Gen. Claire Chennault, and was discharged with the rank of Lt. Col., U. S. A. Following the war he practiced law and made his home in Bermuda for some years. He is now practicing law in New York, where he specializes in the legal aspects of international insurance.

Armistead Mason Lee

The younger son, Armistead Mason Lee, was born April 2, 1915, and was graduated from Yale in 1938. He was selected as a Rhodes Scholar and entered Pembroke College at Oxford in the fall of 1938. The next summer he attended the School of International Studies at Geneva, Switzerland. War clouds were gathering over Europe, and in the early autumn the Rhodes Scholars were returned to their homes, after England declared war on Germany, September 3, 1939. Armistead Lee spent the next two years in graduate study at Yale, and in 1941 entered the Foreign Service of the U. S. State Department. He has been stationed in Canada, Africa, New Zealand, Australia, Jamaica, and Iceland, and is at present head of the Economic Division of the U. S. Embassy at Brussels, Belgium.

THE SPARROW FELLOWS

Two Jefferson County men were chosen at the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia as Sparrow Fellows, and both of them studied at Oxford in the early years of this century.

The History of the Virginia Seminary, published in 1923, states:

> "The Sparrow Fellowship was founded in 1902, the object being to give a student selected by the Faculty an opportunity for post-graduate work at some University either at home or abroad. . . Several students already have reaped the benefit of this Fund supplemented by other contributions, and the Church at large has gained by the higher scholarship it encourages."

Since this History was published the funds for the Sparrow Fellowship have been exhausted, and it is no longer in existence.

The fellowship was named in honor of Dr. William Sparrow, Professor of Theology at the Virginia Seminary.

Paca Kennedy

The first Sparrow Fellow from Jefferson County was Paca Kennedy, who was born August 2, 1878, at "Cassilis," near Charles Town. His mother was a great-granddaughter of William Paca, signer of the Declaration of Independence and Governor of Maryland.

After graduation from Roanoke College in 1899, he went to the Virginia Seminary where he was made a deacon in 1902, being advanced to the priesthood later that year. He was selected as a Sparrow Fellow and went to England where he studied at Oxford for the next two years.

On his return from Oxford he entered missionary work in the Diocese of West Virginia. In 1908 he was called to take the Chair of Greek at the Virginia Seminary. He remained in this position until his untimely death in September, 1931. Dr. Kennedy died in his sleep at Romney, W. Va., where he had stopped to spend the night, returning to Alexandria from Union, W. Va., where he had preached that summer. He was buried in Zion Churchyard, Charles Town.

Edmund Pendleton Dandridge

Jefferson County's next Sparrow Fellow at Oxford was Edmund Pendleton Dandridge, the son of Lemuel P. and Isabella Lawrence Dandridge of "The Bower." He was born on September 3, 1881, at Flushing, Long Island, his mother's old home, and grew up at "The Bower" near Opequon Creek.

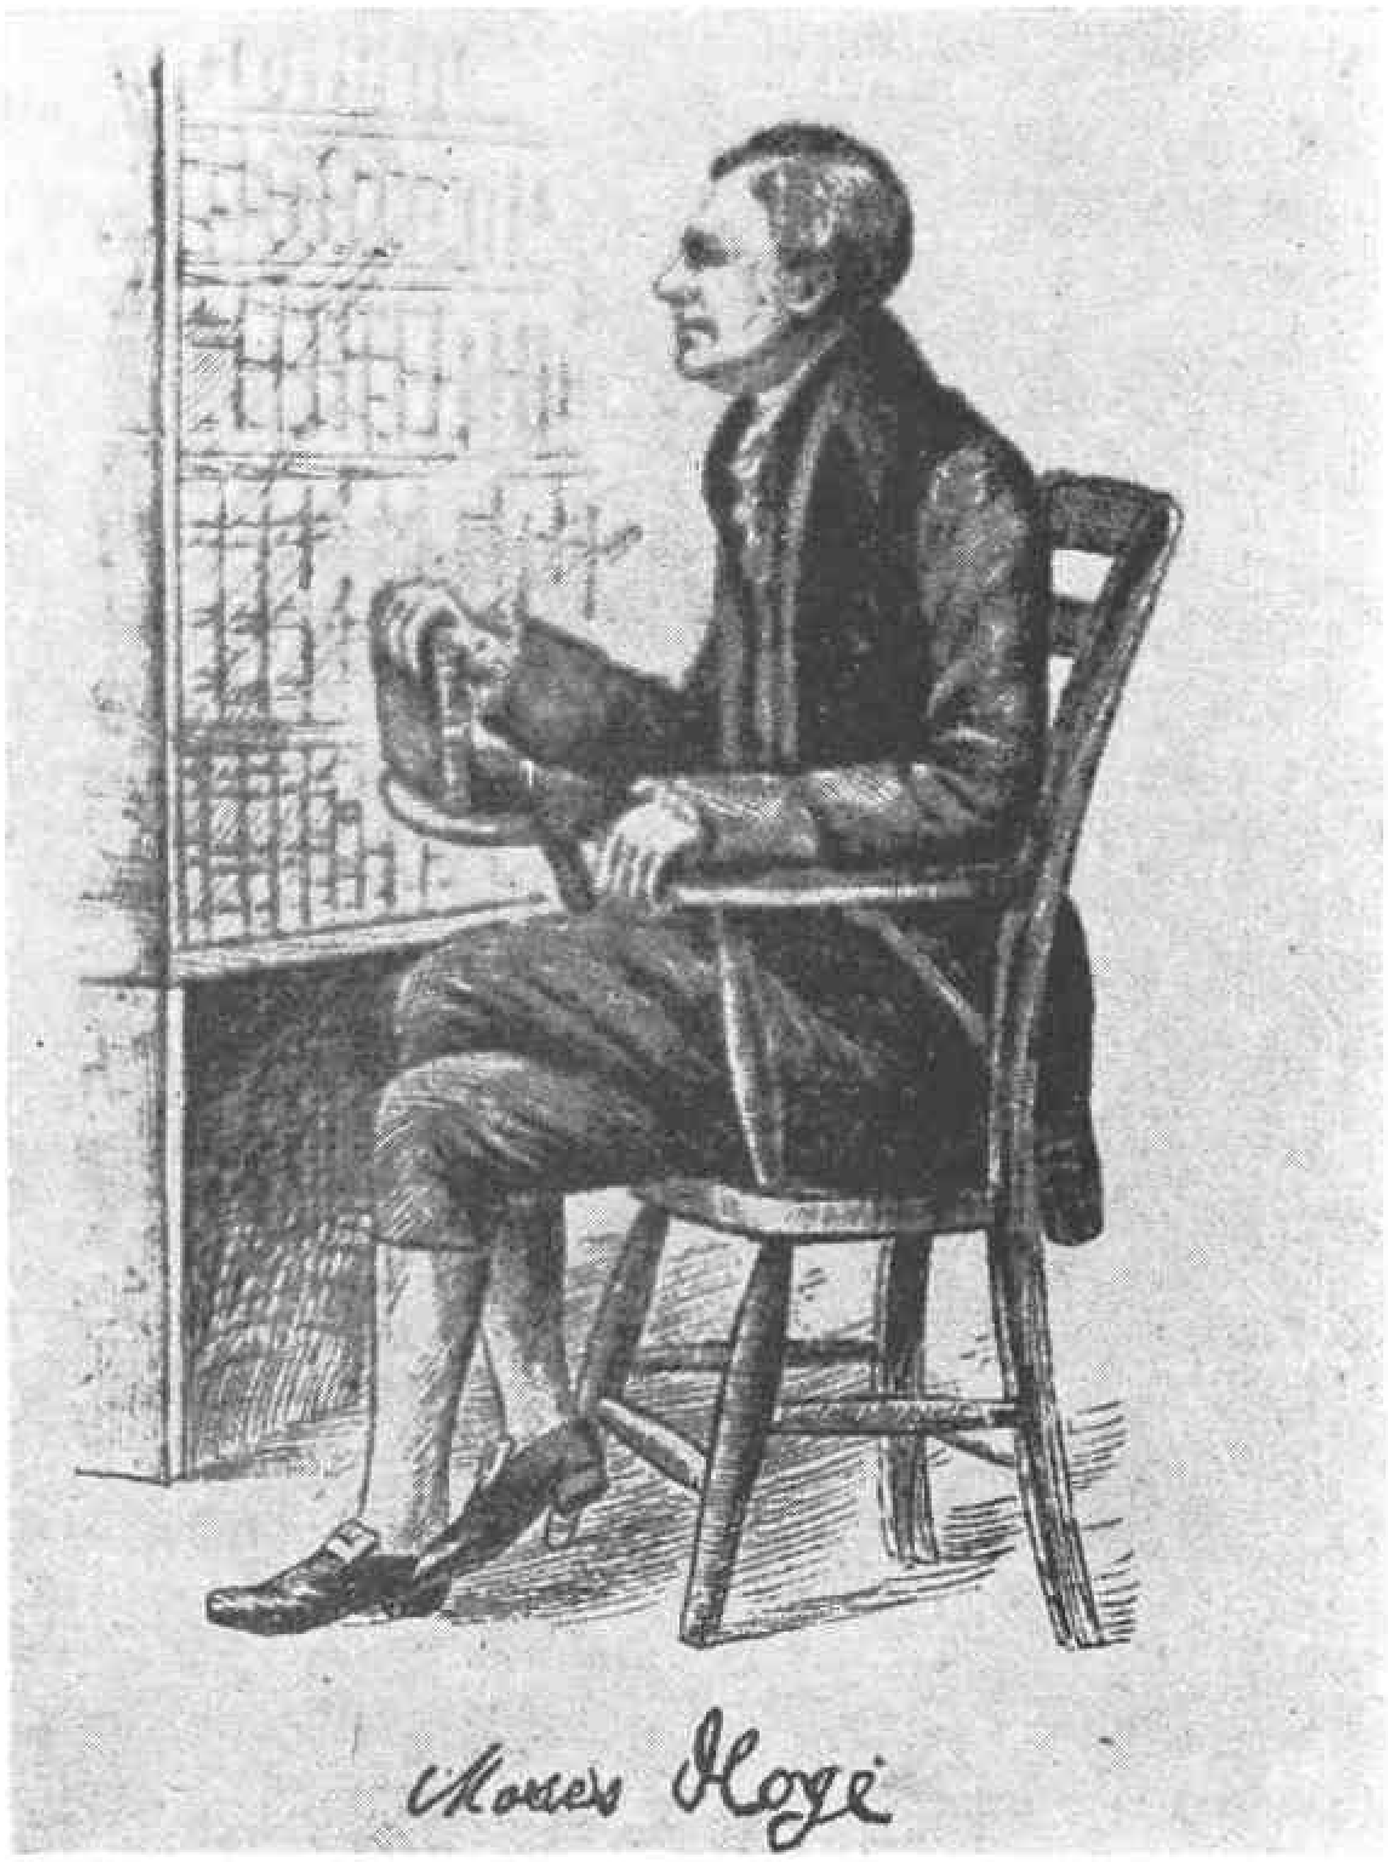

He earned the B.A. degree at the University of Virginia in 1902 and the M.A. in 1903, and then studied at the Virginia Seminary from 1903 to 1906. Chosen as a Sparrow Fellow he attended Oriel College at Oxford and received a degree in theology in 1908. After serving in the Diocese of West Virginia, he went to Tennessee, where he served as Bishop Coadjutor from 1938 to 1946. On January 1, 1947, he became Bishop of Tennessee, from which office he was retired in 1953. Then for several years he served as Dean of the School of Theology at the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

Bishop Dandridge now lives with his daughter at Lexington, Ky., but has maintained "The Bower" as his summer home, usually spending the month of August with his family at this ancestral home of the Dandridges.

Looking down the Potomac toward Pack Horse Ford

Moses Hoge, D.D., 1752 - 1829, was the first resident pastor of the Shepherdstown Presbyterian Church, serving from October 1787 to October 1807, when he was dismissed to the Hanover Presbytery to become president of Hampden-Sydney College for the remainder of his life. He was the first moderator of Winchester Presbytery, organized on December 4, 1794. On May 1, 1792, he opened a school in his home on German Street which he said was "for the purpose of teaching the Latin, Greek and English Languages and some of the most useful branches of Science." "A tutor of good reputation" then had the sons of Moses Hoge among his scholars.

Benjamin Allen, 1789 - 1829, served the Episcopal Churches of Charlestown and Shepherdstown from January 1815 to September 1821. During his second year he published a "Layman's Magazine." In 1815 Charlestown talked of building a new church (Zion), an old one (St. George's) being out of town. In 1819 he established a Sunday School in Shepherdstown with sixty-six scholars, and the Charlestown people agreed to provide him a rectory. The number of St. Andrew's Parish communicants increased greatly during his ministry. In 1820 sixty of them formed the St. Paul's Church, Sharpsburg, Md. He was rector of St. Paul's Church, Philadelphia, from 1821 to 1828, when he sailed to England for his health. He died at sea while returning to America.

MORE ABOUT ROBARDER'S MILL

Mrs. Kemp's article on the old mills in the County, in the December, 1955, issue of this magazine, is most interesting, but the Robarder Mill has an enhanced interest, I think, if carried back of the 1878 deed, Deed Book F, page 327, to which Mrs. Kemp refers.

That deed was to Wm. F. Weirick and John C. Weller, from special commissioners selling under authority of the Court in a creditors suit vs. J. B. McElroy. This land was conveyed to J. B. McElroy by the Heirs of Benjamin Beeler, deceased, March 19th, 1869, by deed recorded in Deed Book 4, page 301, and is part of the dower land assigned to the widow of Benjamin Beeler, by a decree of the Court, dated April 1st, 1835, recorded in Deed Book 36, page 158.

The Will of Benjamin Beeler, dated Feb. 28th, 1827, contains, among other things, the following:

"In the seventh place I wish my CARDING MACHINE MILLS to be put in order for the benefit — my children that is to raise CLOTH &c. all of them that are at home — to enable my wife to support herself & children that are at home & minors."

The plat recorded with the Court division of April 1st, 1835, shows two mills fairly close together, on Evitt's Run, and in these divisions speaks, in one place, of the "old stone mill." And the deed of March 19th, 1869, conveys all mills, mill sites," &c.

The house now occupied by Mrs. Dawson had been, in the latter years of the mill, the residence of the miller, but the hooks still embedded in what is now the east wall of this house, which hooks were for holding the dye vats, seem to confirm the statement of older residents of the neighborhood, that this house was the dye house for these cloth mills.

There have been many grist, flour and saw mills in the County, but, to date, this is the only case of carding mills I have found.

THE HAMMOND ANTIQUE QUILT

About the first of last August Mrs. H. P. Schley, now deceased, who was serving her sixth year as a director of the Jefferson County Historical Society, and her two daughters visited Betty Washington's Kenmore in Fredericksburg and discovered there anew the quilt made by the three wives of Captain Thomas Hammond, Charles Town, thus bringing it to light again.

There is no way of knowing how often this heirloom of the Hammond family has been seen there by visitors from Jefferson County. Possibly its discovery by any of them was first made on August 8, 1932, by Dean A. D. Kenamond and Dr. Louis Knott Koontz, of the University of California at Los Angeles, then teaching a course in American History entitled the Period of Washington in the Shepherd College Summer School. At that time they were leading a caravan of college students on a three-day George Washington Bicentennial tour through Tidewater Virginia.

Through the courtesy of Miss Owen, in charge for the Kenmore Association, Dr. Koontz secured a typewritten copy of the description beneath the quilt as follows:

"Antique Quilt of the Washington-Hammond Families. This quilt is the work of the three wives of Captain Thomas Hammond, of Charles Town, Jefferson County, Virginia (now West Virginia). It was begun in 1792 by Mary Lewis Tapscott, of Lancaster County, Virginia.

"It was continued by his second wife, Mildred Gregory Washington, daughter of Charles (Charles Town, Va.), the youngest brother of General George Washington, between 1797-1801.

"The work was further continued by his third wife, Nancy Newton Collins, of Shepherdstown, Va., between 1807-1835.

"Presented April 16, 1932, to The Kenmore Association, Inc., by Mrs. Algernon Sydney Sullivan (Mary Mildred Hammond), granddaughter of Captain Thomas Hammond, and her son, Geo. Hammond Sullivan."

It may be noted that the quilt had been at Kenmore less than four months and that at the time of its presentation Mrs. Algernon Sydney Sullivan whose early years were spent at Happy Retreat and Shannon Hill, was nearly 93 years old. Mrs. Sullivan and her son, George Hammond Sullivan, had already given Hammond heirlooms to several historical shrines and associations in Virginia, including the Mount Vernon Association.

A CIVIL WAR EPISODE

(From the 1925 autobiography of Mary Catherine Kearney McQuilkin-Kregloe, 1843-1929, daughter of Josiah Thornburg Kearney and granddaughter of Sarah Shepherd Thornburg Kearney. At the time of the episode she was living near Marvin's Chapel on Rocky Marsh.)

One one occasion I saved a man's life and he was an enemy. One morning when Uncle Andy, a trusty old soul, went to the barn to feed what horses we had left, when he climbed into the haymow to throw down some hay, he spied a man who had handcuffs on his arms. He came running to the house to report, and uncle said, "Go bring him down and we will give him some breakfast." I ordered some tools, and with Uncle Andy's help, I finally released the poor man and gave him some breakfast. He told a very plausible story; said the "Yankees" had arrested him and handcuffed him, that he had got away from them and was trying to make his way to the Confederate Camp, which was not far away. After breakfast he took his seat in the doorway which opened into the backyard leading to the meadow beyond. He was conversing very glibly, when I heard the clattering of soldiers on the front porch. Upon going to the door I found General Rosser and some of his staff, who said they were hunting a spy who had made his escape from their camp and was to have been shot that day. I told General Rosser that I had released him and given him his breakfast, and had left him sitting in the backdoor when they came to the front door; but when they looked in, the "bird" had flown. After teasing me a while and saying they would have to arrest me, he said, "Well, you will have to give me the handcuffs anyway," which I did; but I have always been sorry that I did not keep them. They would be quite a relic now.

MEMORIAL PLAQUES IN SHEPHERDSTOWN

On April 24 three memorials to Thomas Shepherd, founder of Shepherdstown, and on May 17 a memorial to James Rumsey, inventor of the steamboat, were dedicated with appropriate ceremonies.

The former had been prepared and placed by descendants of Thomas Shepherd's son William who are now living in Ohio, New York and the District of Columbia. The several historical and genealogical societies to which they belong participated in the dedicatory exercises.

The Rumsey plaque was provided by an aged and distant relative, George A. Rumsey of the Rumsey Electrical Company, Philadelphia. Dedicatory exercises were led by the Rumseyan Society.

The inscriptions on the bronze plaques are as follows:

1. At the entrance to the Shepherd burial ground on New Street: Shepherd Burial Ground Thomas Shepherd 1705-1776 Founder of Shepherdstown. Erected in memory of Emma Shepherd McGarvey. Dedicated by order of The Founders and Patriots of America, Ohio Society.

2. Near the center of the burial ground, a bronze shield mounted on a granite block: Thomas Shepherd 1705-1776. Early American Settler and Patriot, Founder of Shepherdstown, whose five sons served in the Revolutionary War. Placed by the Lafayette Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

3. On the old grist mill on lower High Street: Thomas Shepherd's Grist Mill. Erected before 1739 on the original land grant from Lt. Gov. William Gooch & the Virginia Council, October 3, 1734. The overshot water wheel, 40 feet in diameter, is the largest in the world. Dedicated by Indian Trails Chapter, Ohio National Society, Daughters of the American Colonists.

4. On the house at the southwest corner of Duke and New streets: James Rumsey, Inventor of the Steamboat, Lived Here from 1785 to 1788. Placed By George A. Rumsey 1960.

CHARLESTOWN AND SHEPHERDSTOWN

By Dr. George W. Bagby

(Dr. George W. Bagby, 1828-1883, was well known in Virginia for decades after the Civil War as an editor, pamphleteer and lecturer. A lecture trip to Jefferson County during the spring of 1881 made possible the following description to the "Richmond State."

The inclusion of his description in this Magazine issue was prompted by the appearance, in "the Iron Worker, Autumn 1960, Lynchburg, Virginia," of "Dr. George William Bagby: Professional Virginian" by Dr. Cecil D. Eby, Jr., a native of Charles Town now assistant professor of English at the Washington and Lee University.)

March 28. — No, I did not see Charlestown. Nature unadorned is not like woman, adorned the most. When the aspens that grace the sidewalks are in bloom the place must be very pretty. One is attracted by the Episcopal church in its large elevated yard, from which a fine view of the town and the mountains is obtained. Attended morning service. No seal-skin jackets on the women, not one — great relief to me after Old Point. Mr. Meade preached. A pale face, not unlike Gen. T. M. Logan's of Richmond, but broader of brow and spiritual. A liberal sermon on the requirements for attendance on the Lord's Supper, and a candid admission of the great harm done by the mistranslation of the word "damnation" in connection with the sacrament, pleased me. At night I went to the Methodist church. Sombre, poorly lighted and sadly in need of paint. Full and devout congregation. Better choir singing than usual — Mrs. D's roses illuminating the music — but I felt more than ever the fatality of worship by proxy. Once more to hear the old-fashioned, full-lunged, whole-souled congregational singing would be a boon indeed. A good sermon attentively listened to — and yet somehow (no fault of the sermon) the devil suggested to me that preaching love to God is the devil's own invention, to do away with preaching keen, sharp, heart-cutting sermons on the duty of man to his fellowman. Love to God is a far-away thing; duty to man is, so to speak, "spot cotton." . . .

A county with three towns — Harper's Ferry, Shepherdstown and Charlestown — ought to have a splendid courthouse. The one here is not particularly graceful or tasteful; lacks paint on the ribs or side; needs plugs in the front teeth — that is to say, stucco in the pillars of the portico, and the green belfry forcibly reminds one of a jockey's cap.

I enjoyed an evening with gentlemen at Mr. W. L. Wilson's, made the acquaintance of Col. John Thomas Gibson, who was with Col. Talcott during the war, and renewed my acquaintance with Mr. Andrew Hunter, who holds his own wonderfully well. . . .

Bad weather did not keep me from enjoying my stay at that ancient hotel the Carter House. You see its name on the sign in the picture of Charlestown given by Howe. It has back porches, floors on different levels, cellars, dormer windows, a wide archway over the counter of the office, a paved court-yard, stables in the rear, etc. Melfort kept me supplied with wood for my stove, nursed me in fact like a baby.

He is one of the real old-timy fellows, talkative, tough as a light-wood knot, takes up burning coals in his naked hands, sleeps two hours a night, and has been here eleven years. George, who waits in the dining room, is a good servant too. Mrs. Leisenring "runs" the hotel singlehanded, you may say, and so acceptably as to keep it full summer and winter. Meals are prompt to the minute, the beds are clean. You get all the market (not very good at this time o' year) affords. When I first saw Mrs. L. I said to myself, "she is a Pennsylvanian. You can see that at a glance. Why can't we get up such women in Virginia?" The fact is, she is a sister of Mr. H. D. Beall, of the Baltimore Sun.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ranson, Mrs. Lawson Botts, Mr. and Mrs. George Tongue, Mrs. Douglas and Mrs. Davenport, were regular boarders. We had vocal and instrumental music in the parlor, backgammon, and plenty of talk about the people we knew in Richmond and elsewhere. If we got tired of the ladies we could go into the office and see the Baltimore drummers come in, while the natives sat around the big stove and spit on it till they got a chance to look at the names on the register. What was the great world on the other side of the Potomac to us? We wouldn't give three cents for it.

Tried my luck at Shepherdstown. It was a bitter day. The wind howled and danced like a maniac blue with cold, mad on general principles — "jes' so," as we Virginians say — and raving distracted at this particular time. I felt sorry for the grey-purple blooms of the aspen tree near my window at the Entler House that had come out too soon and couldn't get back any more. Maj. Henry Hagan, immortalized in Cooke's "Surry of Eagle's Nest," keeps the hotel — a man of most amiable parts and valuable beard. His dining room man was small, short, solemn, blaze-faced and exceedingly polite. Told me his name, but I have forgotten it. Mr. Zittle, of the Register, being out of town, Prof. McMurran and Dr. Manning did their best for me. In vain! The weather was too vile; few shekels were gathered. But then I had a night and part of a day with Hon. Alexander R. Boteler, and that paid me handsomely. . . .

I saw little of Charlestown, I saw still less of Shepherdstown. A few streets swept by a fierce March wind, place and population unchanged in a hundred years, a handsome church, a male and female college, which is in fact a high school — that is about all that I know about it.

In Charlestown I tried in vain to get something new about John Brown, but the subject had been picked to the very bone. Mr. Kennedy has in his possession Mrs. Brown's receipt for her husband's corpse, much in these words: "Received of Mr. Andrew E. Kennedy the body of my husband, John Brown, Mary E. Brown," the Brown being written beneath the "E" in an illiterate hand. The amiable woman, who is now applying to Congress for relief, after taking leave of her husband in jail, calmly went to the hotel and applied to the landlady for a cooking receipt of some kind. . . .

G. W. B.

P. S. By odds the most remarkable thing in Shepherdstown is a wooden eye a foot long. It rests on a bible; also of wood and is inserted in the wall of a little bit of a market-house, over which is an Odd-Fellows Hall. The "all-seeing eye" was never more boldly treated — large art, if art high. You must go and see it.

Notes on Dr. Bagby's account of his visit to Charlestown and Shepherdstown:

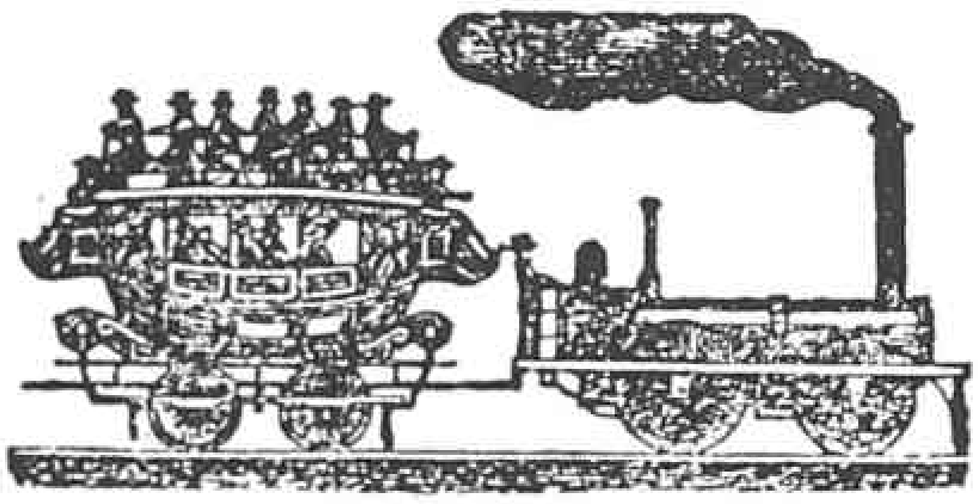

Charlestown it was then. In December 1911 the U. S. Post Office Department made two words of it — Charles Town.

Dr. Bagby, in his description, did not state the year of his visit. However, in a Shepherdstown newspaper list of arrivals at the Entler Hotel, Major Henry Hagan, Proprietor, for the first week of April 1881 is that of G. W. Bagby, Richmond, Va. Major Hagan, who served on the staff of General J. E. B. Stuart and later on that of General Wade Hampton, ran the Entler Hotel for several years, being succeeded as proprietor by Benjamin F. Graves in April 1882. The latter died in 1892.

The dining room patrons of the Carter House in Charles Town were greatly pleased when Mr. Gideon Leisenring re-rented the hotel in February 1878. Since Dr. Bagby says Mrs. Leisenring ran the Carter House single-handed, Mr. Leisenring may not have been in sufficient health to be active in its management in 1881. He did not renew his lease of the place in February 1882, Col. Paul E. Dorsey taking possession as the new landlord on February 8, 1882. Mr. and Mrs. Leinsenring moved to "their elegant new house in the southern suburbs of the town." Mrs. Leisenring became a widow shortly thereafter.

TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

(The first of two lists of gravestone records, giving the essential data from the inscriptions — birth and death dates, and such information as the wife of, son of, or daughter of — and omitting the "Sacred to the Memory of" and similar parts. In 1934 Mrs. J. M. Miller and Miss Carrie B. Wilson, for many years the Society's Curator, made a valuable contribution to all interested in genealogy by completing a survey of practically all the graveyards in the country, excepting the larger church and public cemeteries still in use. Their records have been supplemented somewhat, particularly by including several other graveyards, and the names of those found in each burying ground have been arranged in alphabetic order. Unfortunately, during the past several decades many gravestones have disappeared, and it seems highly desirable to publish all the data gathered from old gravestones still standing as well as earlier recorded data from many which have disappeared.)
